

it is no longer British

British showed their moral decay at the European final.

In the last century they lost their colonial empire, claimed the invention of football and lost many opportunities to boast talent in the sport.

The most widely spoken language in the world is now Spanish and the educated classes speak French.

A few years ago they were already watching the decline of England.

Someone said “it will remain the place where we will send our children to study English”.

Today it is no longer true.

Our children will study English in Italy, USA, Canada or Malta, at least in addition to the language they will learn good manners.

La redazione di Betapress